Service, experience and relationships are what the people of Aldersgate United Methodist Church most remember about SC&A. A letter from the church business administrator states, "We felt they understood the unique needs of a church. We need quiet during a funeral and a reception. We cannot have jack hammers blasting when there is a lecture in our auditorium. Work stoppages had to be anticipated . . . We were not disappointed . . . The site supervisor was wonderful to work with. He understood and responded to our requests with speed and respect." From a technical standpoint, there were additional tests of skill. The brick exterior of the youth and music wing needed to be carefully matched to the existing structure, and the steep pitch of the roof also presented
