

Methodist Country House, Hall 3 Renovations

Greenville, Delaware

An Assisted Living Facility requires a design focused on achieving all the practicality and durability of a hospital combined with all the comforts of home. Now add the fact that construction must very often be done in an occupied space and top it off with the fact that those occupants are elderly and infirm. It can be a recipe for disaster unless it's handled from start to finish with compassion, sensitivity and an understanding of how each of those issues need to be addressed. Beyond appropriate design and quality construction, safety is the primary concern. SC&A has the experience to meet and exceed the needs of the staff and residents in such facilities while achieving the results all customers demand.
